

Figure 1: A timeline of the COVID-19 pandemic in the United States. The timeline shows the progression of the pandemic from January 2020 to January 2021. Key events include the first case in January 2020, the first death in February 2020, the first case in March 2020, the first death in April 2020, the first case in May 2020, the first death in June 2020, the first case in July 2020, the first death in August 2020, the first case in September 2020, the first death in October 2020, the first case in November 2020, and the first death in December 2020. The timeline also shows the progression of the pandemic from January 2021 to January 2022. Key events include the first case in January 2021, the first death in February 2021, the first case in March 2021, the first death in April 2021, the first case in May 2021, the first death in June 2021, the first case in July 2021, the first death in August 2021, the first case in September 2021, the first death in October 2021, the first case in November 2021, and the first death in December 2021.